

Kohls New Director of Food Protection and Consumer Safety Program

Angela Kohls has accepted the position of Director of the Food Protection and Consumer Safety Program, effective Dec. 5. Kohls earned her Bachelor of Science degree from Kansas State University (KSU) in 1987. Her professional career began in September 1995 as a food service inspector for the Junction City/Geary County Health Department and then she became a Food Drug and Lodging Surveyor with KDHE in 1999. She was promoted to a District Manager in 2001 and then accepted a position as Contract Unit Manager in July 2002.

She has more than five years of management experience and over 10 years of retail food regulatory and technical experience. Kohls is also credentialed as a certified Food Safety Professional through National Environmental Health Association (NEHA).